Dear Mr. Leopold:

Records responsive to your request were previously processed under the provisions of the Freedom of Information Act. Enclosed is one CD containing 206 pages of previously processed documents and a copy of the Explanation of Exemptions. This release is being provided to you at no charge.

Documents or information referred to other Government agencies were not included in this release.

For your information, Congress excluded three discrete categories of law enforcement and national security records from the requirements of the FOIA. See 5 U.S.C. § 552(c) (2006 & Supp. IV (2010)). This response is limited to those records that are subject to the requirements of the FOIA. This is a standard notification that is given to all our requesters and should not be taken as an indication that excluded records do, or do not, exist.

For questions regarding our determinations, visit the www.fbi.gov/foia website under "Contact Us." The FOIPA Request Number listed above has been assigned to your request. Please use this number in all correspondence concerning your request. Your patience is appreciated.

You may file an appeal by writing to the Director, Office of Information Policy (OIP), United States Department of Justice, Suite 11050, 1425 New York Avenue, NW, Washington, D.C. 20530-0001, or you may submit an appeal through OIP's FOIAonline portal by creating an account on the following web site: <https://foiaonline.regulations.gov/foia/action/public/home>. Your appeal must be postmarked or electronically transmitted within ninety (90) days from the date of this letter in order to be considered timely. If you submit your appeal by mail, both the letter and the envelope should be clearly marked "Freedom of Information Act Appeal." Please cite the FOIPA Request Number assigned to your request so that it may be easily identified.

You may seek dispute resolution services by contacting the Office of Government Information Services (OGIS) at 877-684-6448, or by emailing ogis@nara.gov. GAWKER MEDIA - VICTIM

b7C

Synopsis: Request case be opened and assigned and notify cyber substantive desk of case initiation.

Details: On or about 12/12/2010, media outlets worldwide issued stories regarding the Gawker Media security breach, involving a network-wide attack which compromised over a million registered accounts. The group behind the attacks is known as Gnosis.

On 12/15/2010, Special Agent [REDACTED] conducted an interview of [REDACTED] at Gawker Media, and [REDACTED] of Gawker Media, email address [REDACTED] telephone number [REDACTED] [REDACTED] mobile telephone number [REDACTED] regarding the Gawker breach. [REDACTED] explained that not only were the company Web servers infiltrated, but also the email system, Frontpage, Issue tracker, Campfire, and SVN Database. The up-to-date source code, including the new Gawker design scheduled to come out 01/03/2011, was breached.

b7C

Soon after the attack, Gnosis uploaded a list of approximately 200,000 Gawker account usernames and passwords to ThePirateBay file sharing network. Many of these usernames were registered with .gov and .mil email addresses. In addition, a one year old database incorporating new code and all development was deleted. Gawker's corporate email, which is hosted by Gmail, had email routing changes as well as administrative privilege changes. [REDACTED] is in the process of removing any compromised servers, but really does not know the extent of the damage. In fact, both [REDACTED] were unsure whether the attack was over and if the hackers were still running freely on the Gawker network. Gawker had already contacted Google about obtaining activity logs.

b7C

According to [REDACTED] everything started approximately two years ago when Gawker published an article regarding Scientology. A hacker group known as 4Chan/Anonymous then attacked the Scientology website claiming that the Internet was bigger than the Scientology group. Many thought this action was in response to the Gawker article and that Gawker and 4Chan/Anonymous were now "friends." Then, a number of critical articles about 4Chan regarding DDOS hacks were published by Gawker. Subsequently, Gawker and 4Chan/Anonymous were no longer "friends." During the summer of 2010, a writer for Gawker referred to 4Chan as "idiotic" in an article. In August 2010, a hole was found in Minify, Gawker's open source script. Gawker Information Technology personnel took action to immediately fix the hole, although it is now known the hole was not completely fixed and this gave Gnosis a way into the system.

b7C

An open source article on <http://thenextweb.com> posted on 12/14/2010 by [REDACTED] entitled "An Interview with Gnosis, the group behind the Gawker hacking." The article reveals information about Gnosis from three members of the group. Gnosis claims not to be directly connected to 4Chan. Gnosis also explains that this hack had nothing to do with the 4Chan/Gawker spat months ago. Gnosis believes that this infiltration will help Gawker improve their security.

METHODS

METHOD 1: Interview or request information from members of the public and private entities. No approval required.

Method Explanation: On 12/15/2010, Special Agent [REDACTED] interviewed

[REDACTED] at Gawker Media, and [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] of Gawker Media, email address

[REDACTED] telephone number [REDACTED] mobile number

[REDACTED] regarding the Gawker breach. [REDACTED] informed SA

[REDACTED] that not only were the company Web servers infiltrated, but also the Email system, Frontpage, Issue tracker, Campfire, and SVN Database.

b6
b7C

[REDACTED] said that Gawker was reluctant to meet with the FBI regarding the breach.

[REDACTED] explained that Gawker is a "mirror of WikiLeaks" and that the company is not interested in prosecution. Gawker will only participate if forced to by the United States Government.

[REDACTED] said the up-to-date source code, including the new Gawker design scheduled to come out 01/03/2011, was breached.

A dump of Gawker data was uploaded to ThePirateBay file sharing network, which included the usernames and passwords of account holders on Gawker databases.

In addition, a one year old database incorporating new code and all development was deleted. Gawker's corporate email, which is hosted by Gmail, had email routing changes and well as administrative privilege changes.

[REDACTED] is in the process of taking out any compromised servers, but really does not know the extent of the damage. In fact, both [REDACTED] were unsure whether the attack was over and if the hackers were still running freely on the Gawker network. [REDACTED] indicated that Gawker has already contacted Google about getting logs. Gawker has approximately 12 Information Technology staff members worldwide.

b6
b7C

According to [REDACTED] everything started approximately two years ago when Gawker published an article regarding Scientology.

A hacker group known as 4Chan/Anonymous then attacked the Scientology website claiming that the Internet was bigger than the Scientology group. Many thought this action was in response to the Gawker article and that Gawker and 4Chan/Anonymous were now "friends". Then, a number of critical articles about 4Chan regarding DDOS hacks were published on Gawker. Subsequently, Gawker and 4Chan/Anonymous were no longer "friends". Approximately six months ago, a writer for Gawker referred to 4Chan as "idiotic" in an article. In August 2010, a hole was found in Minify, Gawker's open source script. The hole was immediately fixed, although it is now known the hole was not completely fixed and this gave Gnosis a way into the system.

On 11/11/2010, [REDACTED] of Gawker Media, launched an inquiry into the unusual activity on his Campfire account. The issue was soon disregarded, and [REDACTED] did not change any of his passwords as a precaution. Then, according to [REDACTED] the Gawker system was attacked due to the "arrogance of Gawker bloggers". [REDACTED] also explained that Gnosis is not the same group as 4Chan/Anonymous.

b7C

METHOD 2: Obtain publicly available information. No approval required.

Method Explanation: An open source article on <http://thenextweb.com> posted on 12/14/2010 by [REDACTED] is "An Interview with Gnosis, the group behind the Gawker hacking". This article reveals information about Gnosis from three members of the group. Gnosis claims not to be directly connected to 4Chan.

Gnosis also explains that this hack had nothing to do with the 4Chan/Gawker spat months ago. Gnosis believes that this will infiltration will help Gawker improve their security.

METHOD 3: Accept information voluntarily provided by governmental or private entities. No approval required. Some requests require documented consent.
